

The full title of your psychology study

Your name or student number

Department of Psychology

Your University

Word count: xxxx words

Abstract

An interesting summary of your essay or paper.

Keywords: this, that, something else

The full title of your psychology study

There is no section heading for the first section in APA6. This first section introduces the contents. It will also usually include the literature review pertaining to the topic of the essay. In an essay, you might not need any other sections, but they are given below as if for a paper.

References are listed in a BibTeX file referred to below (in this case apa6-template.bib). References in parentheses are created by using `\citep{Calogero2013}`, as in: self-objectification has been found to impact womens' social activism (Calogero, 2013). If you want to make the author(s) the subject, you can use `\citet{Saguy2010}`, as in: Saguy, Quinn, Dovidio, and Pratto (2010) examined the effect of sexual objectification on social interactions.

Method

In this section you describe the experiment, perhaps using subsections to clarify the material.

Participants

A subsection explaining the sample used in the study.

Procedures

Information on the procedure followed. Add other subsections as necessary.

Results

This section sets out the results.

Discussion

This section discusses your findings.

References

- Calogero, R. M. (2013). Objects don't object: Evidence that self-objectification disrupts women's social activism. Psychological Science, 24(3), 312–318.
- Saguy, T., Quinn, D. M., Dovidio, J. F., & Pratto, F. (2010). Interacting like a body: Objectification can lead women to narrow their presence in social interactions. Psychological Science.

Appendix

Title of the first appendix

If you have appendices, you can add them in sequence here.